Are We Ready for Climate Change ?

About the session;

Sustainable development is primarily disturbed by the Climate Change and its adverse consequences. Scientist claim that the main causes of the climate change are anthropogenic activities. Therefore, it is our duty and responsibility to identify the potential solutions to climate change mitigation and adaptation. Paris Agreement is one of the key international frameworks acknowledged by other development frameworks to achieve sustainable development along with climate change mitigation and adaptation strategies. There are discussions all around the world to mitigate climate change and many developing countries have agreed to minimize greenhouse gas emission and transform towards carbon neutral solutions. This session aims at discussing about the global and regional approaches, challenges, and emerging strategies of climate change adaptation and mitigation towards sustainable development.
